Subject: RE: MOSES request - new profiles

Jill, I think there should be no problem in doing this. However, due to security requirements, I will need to discuss the project in general and specific terms with whomever is the lead MOSES person as well as anyone who would be involved in the production of such a film. In regard to production of the profiles for anyone in the lab, I will need to discuss in advance and approve any content to assure it doesn't violate any of our legal or administrative requirements. There are legal as well as operational considerations regarding such a project and I want to be certain that everyone involved is aware of these. I can speak to Al DeMaria also regarding the project if you wish or you can speak to him directly. Ralph

Subject: MOSES request - new profiles

Hi Ralph -

I've been assigned to the AIM committee, within MOSES. AIM is a group which focuses on the advancement of MOSESs interests. You may remember a publication that was made about a decade ago, "24 Hour Profiles". It highlighted individual MOSES members by describing their jobs and highlighting a particular achievement in a journalistic/interview style, and was distributed to town libraries and state legislators. (John Donovan and Ellen Molina were presented, to name a few.) The AIM committee plans to produce a new "24 Hour Profiles". Mary Richards would like the theme of this publication to be MOSES members involved in Homeland Security, including Chemical and Bioterrorism Prevention and Detection.

I am writing to ask for your input and permission in regards to this project. I would like to describe the project to persons or groups that I hope to offer as profile candidates. Within Environmental Chemistry, I may ask John Gillis, Paul Servizio, and/or Jennifer Jenner. Julie Nassif explained that CD has a large epidemiologic component to our anti-terrorism efforts - I may speak with Emily Harvey, or someone you suggest. Including someone from Sandy Smole/Cheryl's group would be interesting...

What are your thoughts on this?
